

Abstract

This paper introduces a compromise solution reconciling efficiency and equity in School Choice Problems. We show that, by considering a weak notion of fairness, tau-fairness, it is possible to solve the trade-off between efficiency and equity in the school choice problem. We prove the existence of tau-fair allocations constructively by a procedure, the CEP, that apply sucesively the SOSM and the TTC.